Basketball's varsity play resuming

The East Bay Athletic League varsity basketball season resumes with the first back-to-back weekend schedule ieitsahistorythe first half the season tonight, then begin round two with four more games Saturday night.

Livermore, after drubbing Amador Valley last week, host co-leader Monte Vista. Both the Cowboys and Mustangs top the EBAL with 5-1 records.

The remainder of tonight's schedule pits Amador Valley against California, Dublin against San Ramon and Granada visiting Foothill.

Ready to roll

The BART feeder buses could be running again Monday — for free — if AC Transit workers approve the district's latest offer today. Bay Area Rapid Transit directors announced yeaterday they would provide a month's free service for the 1,500 Valley bus customers inconvenienced by the 68-day strike.

For Valley commuters

Free bus service seen if strike ends

Today's contract vote by AC Transit workers could mean 30 days of free service for Valley passengers using BART's feeder bus lines to Walnut Creek and Hayward.

More than 1,500 daily riders have been stranded by the 68-day strike and Bay Area Rapid Transit directors said yesterday's surprise move was made partly to make up for the strike's inconvenience.

AC spokesman Mike Curry said Valley service "Could — I repeat could — be restored Monday," if the latest contract proposal is accepted.

BART's feeder service in the Valley is operated under contract with AC.

If Amalgamated Transit Union Local 192 were to approve AC latest offer, a big "if," free service would begin this Monday, Jan. 30 and continue until Tuesday, Feb. 28.

However no one is betting on the outcome of the day-long balloting and AC and union officials are still smarting from the union's surprise rejection of AC's first offer Jan. 15. That offer was endorsed by local president John Wesley Jr. and state concilliator Joseph Anderson but rejected almost 2-1 by the 1,094 members who voted.

Local membership numbers 1,883 and both sides are hoping the turnout is higher today.

No details of the tentative pact were announced by either side after the agreement was reached Tuesday but members have had a day to study and discuss it and the vote at the union office in Oakland will be supervised by Anderson and coincides with distribution of the weekly $50 strike benefit checks.

The first vote has been seen as a reflection of members' discontent with Wesley as well as dissatisfaction with the offer whih some drivers called worse than the expired contract.

Publicly the union called for increased pension benefits and a 6.5 percent raise that would lift the average driver's hourly wage from $8.05 to $8.29.

AC countered it was limited by its budget limit of $12 million and stuck to that framework.

The city will convert Pleasanton street lights to use more energy-efficient globes.

City takes dim look in new energy push

PLEASANTON — City streets will dim soon as Pacific Gas and Electric takes down 116 overhead lights, under order from the city council.

It's all part of an energy and cost saving program approved by council Tuesday. In addition to cutting back lights, the city is embarking on a four-year program to switch all existing street light bulbs to a new low wattage, high pressure sodium vapor lipht.

The sodium vapor lights are almost three times more efficient than the existing mercury vapor lights, according to director of public works and utilities Alan Campbell.

Although switching over to the new lighting system will cost about $130,000, Campbell predicts the city will be completely paid back through energy savings within five years. Sodium vapor lights are expected to save the city $35,000 a year.

Most of the 116 lights to be removed within the next few months are on major roads such as Hopyard, Foothill Road, Santa Rita Road, Vineyard Avenue and Johnson Industrial Drive.

Campbell says those roads have more lights than necessary and he hopes to cut back other unnecessary lights in the future.

Murray trustee seat

Hopefuls to meet public Monday

Candidates for the Murray School District board position vacated by Bob Foster last week will meet the public at a special trustees session scheduled Monday at Murray School in Dublin.

The board will introduce those candidates who have turned in resumes to the district offices and provide the forum for Murray district residents to question board aspirants.

At least two "probables" but no official candidates had come forward by early Thursday. The likely candidates are Linda Cooley, a resident of Val Vista in Pleasanton, and Harry Molz, a Dublin realtor. Both ran in the last general election when Donald Biddle was elected and Linda Jeffery reelected.

Deadline for resumes is 10 a.m. Monday.

Should an abundance of candidates turn-in resumes by Monday, the board will consider holding a second "candidates night" on Feb. 2.

The board will interview selected candidates on Feb. 6 and make an appointment on or before Tuesday, Feb. 14.

The person selected could not act on board matters for 30 days until the public, by law, was given the chance to file for a special election.

Monday's meeting is at Murray School, 8435 Davona Dr., Dublin.

Kottinger's units to get full manager

PLEASANTON — Housing authority commissioners last night agreed to hire a resident manager for Kottinger Place, a 50-unit federally subsidized elderly apartment project here.

The decision came after a committee meeting Monday between commissioners and tenants.

It ended an uphill struggle for some tenants, who have sought a manager and a working emergency alarm system ever since the last manager quit three years ago.

Commissioners set March 1 as the deadline for applications and hope to have a manager move in by mid-March.

Commissioners also reviewed the emergency call system designed by Edwards Engineering and suggested by the joint committee. The system, noted director Michael Parsons, would work with or without a manager and would be maintained by Edwards if the company is awarded the contract.

Commissioners informally approved the system, waiting for assurance from Edwards that the system can, in fact, be made and an OK from the police department here for the call boxes before finally installing the project next month.

Pleasanton campaign filings

Kephart leading fundraiser

PLEASANTON — Stan Kephart is overwhelmingly leading other city council candidates here in contributions, according to campaion disclosure statements filed with the city attorney's office yesterday.

The 37-year-old law enforcement officer received a $490 cash contribution from the Pleasanton Firefighters labor union, plus a total of $295 in small contributions under $50 from unnamed individuals.

Campaign laws passed in 1974 force candidates to report all contributions, and to list the names and addresses of contributors when the amount is over $50.

Kephart received one non-monetary contribution worth $68.85, giving him a total intake during the first three weeks of the campaign of $851.85. He has spent $203 of that so far.

The four otner candidates have received far less in contributions.

Walt Wood, a 59-year-old planning commissioner, reported $98 in contributions, with no single one over $50. He has paid out $73.70 in advertising, leaving him with $24 cash on hand.

Edmond Alves ran close to Wood. The 46-year-old small business man and housing authority commissioner has raised $74. And he reports spending none of that to date.

Oliver Anjo, a 58-year-old CARD Committee member and retired military officer, and John Foley, a 33-year-old purchasing agent in Oakland, both reported receiving no contributions. Nor has either spent any money on the campaign, according to their disclosure papers.

None of the candidates running for the two open council seats March 7 reported taking out any loans or receiving any pledges.

Election forums set

LIVERMORE — Candidates' nights are being organized as the campaigns warm up for the March 7 election. The League of Women Voters will host a candidates' night at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 23 at Granada Student Union. Moderator will be Karen Fritts.

The League of Women Voters also will host a similar candidates' night in Pleasanton the following week, 7:30 p.m. on March 2 at Harvest Park Library. Moderator will be Kay Honodel.

The Livermore Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a noon luncheon on Feb. 21 for the candidates at Holiday Inn. The candidates will be answering questions from the audience during the luncheon.

Probe hits DOE on nuclear safety course

WASHINGTON —It was the Energy Department's turn in the dock Thursday as Congress continued its investigation into the long-term effects of low level radiation.

The DOE came in for criticism for failing to keep track of the health record of people who leave its employe, for failing to devote enough resources to the study of the effects of low level radiation on exposed people, for inflexibility in adjusting safety standards in the light of new information and for allowing exceptions to its standards for military personnel at nuclear tests in the 1950's.

Making the criticisms were Rep. Paul Rogers (D-Florida), chairman of the health and environment sub committee; Rep. Tim Lee Carter (Kentucky), a physician who is ranking Republican on the sub committee, and Rep. Douglas Walgren (D-Penn.), the only other member of the 14-member subcommittee who was present Thursday and half of Wednesday.

Despite the poor turnout — in three full days, not a single Republican other than Dr. Carter showed up once — it became clear Thursday that the committee is moving in the direction of Congressionally determined safety standards or perhaps creation of a special commission to study that possibility.

Current Energy Department rules — adopted in 1956 — hold that if a person is exposed to five rads of radiation, he or she must be removed from all contact which radiation for one year; if the exposure is three rads, there must be removal for three months. Committee heard testimony this week linking leukemia and other forms of cancer with much smaller doses.

Testifying Thursday was Dr. Donald Kerr, acting assistant secretary of energy for defense programs, a former Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory and Nevada Test Site official. He was accompanied by a dozen DOE officials, including several with experience at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and Nevada.

Kerr gave the congressmen a primer history of the U.S. test program and a run down of safety procedures. He granted that since 1963, when nuclear tests went underground, "there have been 19 releases of radio activity detected (the Nevada Test Site)."

However, Kerr said the last release was in 1971, and the last "significant" one was in 1970 in the Baneberry test, which "vented." He said the Baneberry failure was followed by a major study and a change in procedures.

Baneberry received almost as much attention Thursday as the 1957 Smokey test had Wednesday. Dr. Carter and DOE officials argued over how many military participants in it have now been found to have leukemia. At least one of 13 security guards has died of the disease, it was agreed.

Two others have also died of leukemia; DOE said they were from a group of 900, but Carter thought the group was much smaller.

DOE said court cases are now pending on the liability of the government for the deaths. Chairman Rogers elicited from DOE a list of its studies on the effects of low level radiation on people who have been exposed. He was told that 18 to $19 million a year is spent on that subct. By far the largest study listed was a $6 million one being conducted on Japanese survivors of American bombs.

Also listed was the $500,000 Mancuso report on the Hanford, Wash., and Oakridge, Tenn., DOE labs. Hearings are scheduled next month on the charge that the DOE suppressed that study.

Rogers asked why no studies had been conducted on the military participants in nuclear tests.

A DOE official responded, "until this was brought to our attention, we thought they were not likely to be undergoing unaccepteble risks."

In his testimony, Kerr said that the decisions which resulted in exposures of military people back then were made by the military. However, Rogers argued that that role had been delegated by the Atomic Energy Commission and should not have been.

Pleasanton dragnet fails

PLEASANTON — A seven-hour search for two burglary suspects in the Val Vista area Wednesday proved fruitless despite the use of police dogs and a helicopter, police reported yesterday.

A Payne Road resident called police about 11:40 a.m. Wednesday and said two men were going in and out of a nearby residence. Officers responded to the area forcing the suspects to flee on foot, abandoning their vehicle which contained stereo components taken from the house.

Val Vista residents called police to report seeing the men running through fields and backyards, but more than 15 officers failed to catch the suspects.

Police recovered the suspects' vehicle and are tracing it back to the owner. Lt. Dave Freeman said the vehicle changed hands recently and was not thought to be stolen. The car's owner would be listed as a suspect, he said.

The suspects may have escaped the area on two stolen bicycles that were later recovered near Interstate 580.

One suspect is described as a male Mexican in his twenties with dark hair over his ears. The second suspect is described as a male Mexican in his twenties with dark hair and a mustache. One of the suspects is believed to be a San Jose resident.

The search was discontinued about 6:30 p.m., Freeman said.

Resigned police chief

Lindgren may sue city

LIVERMORE — Livermore attorney Jack Noonan said yesterday that former Police Chief Ronald Lindgren has discussed with him the possibility of filing civil lawsuits in connection with Lindgren's sudden resignation Jan. 18.

Noonan, who met with Lindgren and city officials immediately before the resignation was publicly announced, said that no definite actions are planned until the district attorney's office issues a report on the incident.

"Once we see the district attorney's report, then we can move on it," Noonan said yesterday. He expected the investigation would be completed sometime next week.

Noonan said Lindgren was "probably unaware" that he was being followed by private investigator Claude Glenn of Oakland. Glenn's report was apparently the basis for the resignation.

City Manager Bill Parness originally said Lindgren's resignation was spurred by differences in management philosophy and that no evidence of illegal acts existed. Two days later, however, Parness said that he had obtained new facts that, if corroborated, would mean that "some illegal practices indeed might have occurred."

Noonan said he had not received a copy of the private investigator's report and had not been informed of the official allegations made against his client.

Lindgren issued a statement to the press Wednesday in which he complained of not receiving the investigator's report and did not know what areas were being investigated by the district attorney's office.

Lindgren is on a leave of absence until his resignation takes effect Feb. 18. Acting Police Chief Jack Essex heads the police department while the search for a new police chief goes on.

Area pupils held late for safety

PLEASANTON — Some students at Donlon School in the Val Vista section were kept in the school buildings up to an hour Wednesday as a precautionary measure due to a nearby ground and air search for persons suspected to be fleeing from residential burglaries.

Pleasanton Police and a helicopter scoured neighborhoods surrounding the school on Dorman Road during the early afternoon hours. Students taking buses home were permitted to board after 2 p.m.

Livermore's budget needs help, he says

LIVERMORE — "I don't feel I've been represented as fully as I could have been, that's one reason I'm running for city council," says Jerry Wilverding in his soft-spoken manner. "That, and our budget. Our budget is in dire straits, although no one will admit it."

The president of the American Taxpayers' Union, Wilverding takes a keen interest in the budget and its management. He says if the Jarvis Bill doesn't pass, limiting taxes to one per cent of 1975-76 property evaluations and dustrial growth by getting rid of sewer charges and water storage charges, reduce them to "practically nothing."

"They claim growth has to pay its way, and I think industrial growth will pay its way if you give it a chance to locate here," adds the Lawrence Livermore Lab employee.

On the downtown plan, he says, "It's a plan not a panacea." And with increased business downtown will come more traffic, creating driving and parking problems.

"There is a need for water." But he feels the guidelines and controls are too stringent. "Water coming out of the plant must be a higher grade than what we're drinking, higher than the natural run-off water," he says with a smile.

"But if we don't have the pipeline we'll have cease and desist," he continues. "I don't claim it's the best solution and I don't agree with going against the vote of the people."

Besides the larger issues, he would like to see little changes to affect representation and communication. He would prefer having the city manager speak early in city council meetings instead of being the last item on the frequently long agendas. "(William) Parness should be one of the first to speak his thoughts on a council night and give the people the chance to comment on what he has to say and what other city staff people have to say," he says. "It used to be that way. Tirsell and her group changed it."

He feels Southern Pacific came out of the railroad relocation "smelling like a winner." He notes, "They really have nothing invested they didn't have before. They didn't give anything. They're going to develop their land and let the tenants and the consumers of the town pay for it. They're not going to give anything."

He spoke out against the insulation ordinance when it came up last fall.

Jerry Wilverding

Council candidate

requiring a two-thirds vote of people to increase property taxes, then the state assembly is going to put a limit on what the cities can have for property tax income.

"Since our city council has demonstrated it can't operate within a growing budget of 15 or 16 per cent of property tax, how will they operate within on a limited budget?" he asks.

He says he would advocate a freezing of all city employees at the present level for one year and increasing the tax base through more industrial growth.

"I believe first-class commercial development has passed Livermore by," he says.

He believes the city needs a city hall, but he recommends taking a school — Fifth Avenue School — for city hall facilities instead of building it. "We in this town have lost about 1,000 students and this means there's a free school somehwere. I propose taking the money going for the building and putting it in a reserve to self-insure ourselves because our insurance last year cost us just about a quarter of a million dollars," he says.

He would encourage industrial growth by getting rid of sewer charges and water storage charges, reduce them to "practically nothing."

"They claim growth has to pay its way, and I think industrial growth will pay its way if you give it a chance to locate here," adds the Lawrence Livermore Lab employee.

On the downtown plan, he says, "It's a plan not a panacea." And with increased business downtown will come more traffic, creating driving and parking problems.

"There is a need for parking, but if we create more parking we're asking them to come downtown," he observes. He advocates the bus system, but his original idea was a small system that could have utilized vans on a "dial-a-ride" concept. The bus system coming in June is more expensive, but should reach more of the people, he says.

One of his campaign priorities is representation. Wilverding said he helped present a petition of 3,200 names, voters, to have the railroad relocation put on the ballot. The petition was declared illegal on the city attorney's counsel. He would want the voice of the people heard more in council decisions and actions.

On the pipeline subject, Wilverding says he voted for it because "we were mandated to clean up the

County sees tax cut if state picks up bills

OAKLAND — Alameda County could cut its tax rate 34 per cent if the state would assume the financial responsibility for some of the county - administered programs it mandates.

That's the argument from Supervisor Fred Cooper and his colleagues who this week agreed to send a letter to the governor and the legislature asking the state to pick up the costs of the programs.

The 34 per cent tax reduction, if accomplished, would cut the current $3.07 tax rate to $2.03, said Cooper.

Biggest program where supervisors would like state relief is the county contribution to the state's Medi-Cal program. The county spends $20.7 million annually on that item which eats up 46 cents on the property tax rate.

The state directly administers Medi-Cal and the budget therefore is not controlled by the county.

Another big item is the $9.8 million county contribution (22 cents on the tax rate) to the federal/state supplemental aid for the aged, blind or disabled. As with Medi-Cal, the state controls the expenditures.

Other state - mandated costs paid by the county include juvenile justice legislation, $5.3 million in costs and 12 cents on the tax rate; general assistance program, $4.3 million and nine cents; mental health services $2 million and four cents; and municipal court judges salaries, $1.2 million and three cents.

The county also pays $1.5 million a year for extra work by public defenders where they would have a conflict of interest in defending more than one client in a multiple defense.

Other state - mandated programs include $700,000 or two cents for supporting the county public defenders — the state can pay up to 10 per cent of the county's costs, but it pays less than 1 per cent; $700,000 for drug and alcohol rehabilitation money not picked up by the state; and $400,000 or one cent for the county's new responsibility for investigating and administering guardianships as commanded by a new state law.

In their letter to Sacramento, the supervisors said that "state assumption of these property tax costs would result in similar property tax reductions in all other California counties."

Zany type talent

There will be zany entertainment ready at the Arroyo Mocho School version of the "Gong Show," to be held Tuesday, Jan. 31 at the school. The event, which costs $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, is sponsored by the teachers, staff and parent-teacher organization of Arroyo Mocho. Proceeds will benefit school projects, and a variety of entertainment.

Eighth graders see next step

Eighth grade students in the Livermore Valley Unified School District this week received their assignments to either Livermore or Granada High School for next year.

Assignments were based on the boundary adopted in 1970 that started in the north at Portola Avenue and runs from N. L Street to S. L Street, then to Arroyo Road.

Parents wanting a change in assignment for students should send a request in writing to the pupil services office at the district office, 685 Las Positas Blvd., 94550 and all requests must reach the office by 4:30 p.m., Friday, Feb. 10. Requests will be considered on the basis of space availability but exceptions to the regular procedure would include special education students and requests for curriculum programs not available at both campuses.

Students must agree to remain in a requested curriculum for at least two years and withdrawal prior to that time would mean returning to the school first assigned.

Livermore teacher is honored

Zoe Ann Murray, a 20-year teacher in the Livermore schools has been nominated by the Livermore Education Association to receive the California Teachers Association's Gold Award as the outstanding teacher and teacher advocate of the year.

Murray has worked in a large number of official and unofficial capacities for the district and in the community including as chairwoman of the inservice credit evaluation committee and as a member of the district's needs assessment steering committee, school design committee, Title IX committee and AB 65 phase-in committee.

She represented the district in the Association of Low-Wealth School Districts and on advisory committee to Assemblyman Floyd Mori.

She currently teaches 3rd grade at Sonoma School and her past assignments included 7th and 8th grade math at Junction Avenue School.

Honor band

Melantha Snider, a Foothill High School senior, has been named to the California State Honor Band that will perform at the California State Band Directors Convention Feb. 10-12.

Miss Snider is believed to be the only high school student from the Valley to be selected. A baritone saxophonist, her audition tape was judged along with hundreds of others 2½ weeks ago. She is one of just six baritone saxophonists statewide to be selected.

The band directors convention is scheduled for the new convention center in Salinas. Band members will rehearse the first two days and perform the third day, under the baton of David Whitwell, professor of music at Cal State Northridge.

Band director at Foothill is Robert Moorefield.

Hope award

SANTA MONICA (AP) — A jesting Bob Hope spent two days in Superior Court hammering out a settlement in the $3 million suit he filed over a fire that destroyed his desert "dream house" in 1973.

Judge Mario Clinco said Tuesday that the negotiated settlement awarded the 74-year-old comedian $430,000 for the partially constructed house near Palm Springs.

Court House

The 20 - year quest for a Court House that would serve residents in the eastern extension of Alameda County got closer to a decision this week. But that does not mean politicians in the Valley's three urban centers are any closer to agreeing on that final choice.

The latest report handed the County Board of Supervisors cleared the air of a couple of controversial points: 1. The large jail needed by an East County Court House should be built at Santa Rita, regardless of where the court facility is established;

2. Services such as health and welfare should be offered in each of the three population centers, close to the people who need such service.

There can be little disagreement on those points. There is however widespread, provincial conflict over that coveted Court House site. The county's current focus on Hopyard Road on Pleasanton's north side will do little to erase that conflict.

There can be only one East County Court House ... cost and common sense dictate no other choice. It must also be as central as possible to the total Valley population. And it should be built as soon as possible, to give East County residents a share of services that have always been headquartered in Oakland or Hayward.

The supervisors, in their wisdom, will decide where to build that Court House. The people, in their anxiety, are beginning to wonder when?

WE SHOULD NOT LOSE SIGHT of the urgent need to bring the county prison at Santa Rita into modern, efficient use, regardless of when and where that East County Court House is developed.

Too long has that ancient conglomeration of buildings been compelled to house in excess of 1000 inmates ... men, women, drunks and murderers. It is a condition which courts and grand juries have condemned, and which the people can no longer tolerate.

Build the East County Court House, yes; but never forget that Santa Rita Priosn Prison is still the board of supervisors' highest priority for budgeting in this basin.

FOCUS/ Bills combat...

Child abuse

There are few things more disgusting than to learn of or read about cases of child abuse.

A common misconception is that it occurs primarily amongst those of lower or lower middle class means. This notion has been fostered by the fact that persons of greater means can more easily cover-up or pass off such incidents.

But the one thing no one can hide (short of imprisonment) is a child who has been beaten and/or whose spirit has been broken.

The physical and mental abuse shows up in the class room, as well as hospital emergency wards, doctors' offices, and the homes of friends.

Welfare offices get frequent calls from concerned teachers, doctors and other members of the community. The courts are often back-logged with child abuse cases and the growing number of new ones sometimes find them unable to act under existing laws.

Recent legislation introduced by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy, R-Hanford, is designed to help, according to Steve Way, writing for Capitol News Service.

Duffy's bill, AB 2259, would give juvenile courts the power to declare a minor, living in a home where another child has been abused, a dependent of the court.

According to the Capitol News Service article by Way, Duffy introduced the bill in order to alter present unspecific law. "The way the law reads now, a child may not be made a dependent child of the court unless it can be proven that particular child has been the victim of physical abuse, cruelty or neglect.

"No matter how severely a child's brother or sister have been abused, Duffy said, "and no matter how certain it seems that that child, too, will soon be the victim of similar abuse, the court is presently powerless to take any preventive or protective steps whatsoever."

Duffy's bill would permit juvenile courts to adjudge a person a dependent of the court if his/her home is an unfit place to live because his person or health may be endangered by a situation that exists there.

Reports of child abuse have been growing for the past six or seven years, according to Don Brown, director of the Children's Protective Services Bureau.

Others involved with the rights and welfare of children believe we've "only seen the tip of the iceberg" as far as child abuse cases are concerned.

Brown believes greater community awareness and the mandatory reporting law have contributed to the number of cases reported.

Assemblyman Duffy has already authored a second measure on the subject, AB 2258.

Duffy says the latter "recognizes the devastating effects upon a child who remains in foster care indefinitely and is shifted from one home to another while his case is pending."

The bill requires that a hearing to declare a child free from parental custody and control must be set not more than 90 days after the petition is filed in court. Under current law, the process can drag on for six months or more.

The Hanford Assemblyman believes this change in the law would cutdown children being shunted from one foster home to another.

And possibly also prevent children from being scarred mentally for life.

—By AL FISCHER

round the town

There were 13 American presidents who won office with less than 50 percent of the vote, including Nixon, Kennedy, Truman and Woodrow Wilson — twice!

Trivia, trivia, all the world is trivia. Now there is a publication that brings together all the trivia that's fit to print. The question is — "Why bother?"

Gravestone Epitaphs That Never Were ... including this one authored by Eddie Cantor: "Here in nature's arms I nestle / Free at last from Georgie Jessel."

There is no end to the useless information that people think they need to survive this vale of tears. It was that knowledge which prompted David Wallechinsky and friends to put together The Book Of Lists. Also known as "The Peoples' Almanac." Also one of the nation's best sellers.

After you read The Book Of Lists, (I cannot imagine who reads the whole thing, other than perhaps Ben Fernandez and other such trivia freaks) you experience three emotions: 1. Disgust at having wasted so much time reading all that junk; 2. Amazement that so much information is compiled on so many useless people; and, 3. Anger that you hadn't thought of publishing your own Book Of Lists and thereby cashing in before Wallechinsky and friends made it big.

Some trivia can be controversial, even political. Take for example Irving Stone's list of ten losers who would have made better presidents than the winners.

There is Humphrey over Nixon, naturally. But would you agree with Alfred Smith rather than Herbert Hoover? Or how about John W. Davis instead of Calvin Coolidge in that 1924 runoff? Would the nation had fared better under Horatio Seymour than it did through President Grant's administration?

The Book Of Lists gets downright gossipy when it offers us 20 Members of President Nixon's Original Enemies List. On the other hand, there are those who need such a list in order to complete their dinner invitations.

Sixteen nations that have more sheep than people.

Some of the information is essential at dinner parties. I can hardly wait until I sit down to dinner with our Queensland kin, a few weeks hence, and announce ... "You of course are aware that Australia has the world's highest percentage of sheep as per people." This is guaranteed to stir up the appetite, particularly if they are serving mutton, again.

On the other hand, our stopover in Fiji will be enlivened when I advise those natives that Fiji is one of just three nations in the world that today claims no armed force whatsoever. That does not suggest one get out of hand whilst visiting Fiji, however; they have some of the meanest looking unarmed forces I have ever seen.

The world's ten toughest tongue twisters. The very toughest of which is purported to be ... "The sixth sick sheik's sixth sheep's sick." (I'll try that on my Australian hosts, but only after we've hoisted a few.)

Are you big on litter? Then 4007 objects orbiting the earth will be of particular interest. And yes, the US of A leads in that litter parade, too. Outdistancing Russia in satellite junk by almost three - to - one.

Fifteen authors who wrote best sellers in prison. That's on page 241. On page 242 I expected to find Fifteen, best - selling authors who should be in prison. But no such luck. The next category in fact offers Twelve writers who ran unsuccessfully for public office. Hell, I know 12 writers right here in town who have been running unsuccessfully through much of their mimeographed lives.

Equally misleading is the list of Major mistakes made by 12 great men of science. There is no similar chapter on the major mistakes made by great politicians, but then again they had to cut this book off at just 519 pages.

I was particularly fascinated to read Fifteen heavy drinkers of the 20th Century but was surprised to find no one therein I recognized, not even from the Saturday golf group. (In that same hazard, it was nice to find Arnold Palmer's 18 toughest golf holes, but I was amazed to see the 19th hole at San Ramon Country Club left off that list.)

Sometimes it is a relief just to see what The Book Of Lists did NOT print. Ten Famous Men Who Were Supported By Their Wives comes in that category. My name was not included, which either means I am not as famous as I thought, or that my wife is not working as hard as I figured. Either way, it's one bit of trivia best left unpublished.

Sacramento report

Need for prisons

By Fred W. Kline
Capitol News Service

SACRAMENTO — Everybody ... well, almost everybody ... thinks California needs new state prison facilities, but so far little has been done about it.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. supports the idea and included nearly $100 million in last year's proposed budget to build new prisons, but the money didn't make it into the final spending bill.

Again this year, Brown urged the building of new prisons when he gave his State of the State message to the legislature.

One bill which would appropriate $130 million for new correctional facilities has been introduced.

But so far, the liberal-dominated legislature, with majority votes in some key committees, has been able to block plans to construct new prisons.

What has also ben ignored here, is that San Quentin and Folsom prisons are deteriorating to the point where even the best conditions are not considered adequate.

Just as important to taxpayers, the cost of maintenance for these old facilities are getting to be astronomical.

The prudent thing to do would be to build new prisons in Southern California, nearer the center of population for this state.

New facilities would not only be more economical to maintain but would be more efficient and less costly to get prisoners there.

There are arguments over where the new prisons should be located, and that's understandable. But what are harder to understand are arguments from some well-meaning but misguided people who do not want any new prisons built.

Either they prefer to have prisoners incarcerated in overcrowded run-down facilities, which is unlikely, or they don't want people sent to prison, a more likely reason for their contention.

For some reason, these people would prefer to have criminals, many of whom are violent, left loose to prey on society.

It is time these social reform do-gooders realize the grim fact that some humans are the equivalent of the four-legged mad dogs. They have to be put away for the safety of the rest of us.

That doesn't mean we should abandon rehabilitation or efforts to prvent one from beginning a life of crime and violence.

But it does mean we need humane facilities to house violent "mad dogs" capable of brutal crimes against persons.

So we urge the legislature to approve funds for new prisons as quickly as possible. And we urge lawmakers to make the hard decision necessary of where to locate them, regardless of political pressure inherent to any tough decision.

Let's get on with the business of keeping our homes, neighborhoods and cities as safe as we can possibly make them.

Letters to the Times

Downtown's needs

Open Letter to Pleasanton City Council Candidates:

It is interesting to note that the city council candidates have not very often addressed themselves to problems in the downtown area. I wonder how they feel about downtown development vs, urban sprawl? How do they feel about the Pleasanton Downtown Association? How do they plan to generate revenue to support needed public expenditures for downtown area, i.e. drainage and repaving of Main Street, trees, trash receptacles, traffic, etc.? What are their opinions on shopping centers on the periphery? How do they propose to institute general plan of Pico and Del Valle Expressway to improve traffic circulation and lessen downtown congestion? Perhaps it is time council members be concerned about downtown, it is all ready here and should be everyone's concern.

City Hall's cost

Editor, The Times:

Here is an article from the Jan. 20, 1978 issue of the Oakland Tribune: "Sympathies go to the Livermore taxpayers, currently footing a bill of $834,000 for a new city administration building under construction, which is 11,000 sq. ft. That's a building cost of $75.82 per sq. ft. and it's going up on existing foundations, with no site work and no land costs. (Taxpayers get ripped off, who else?) At the same time, the Livermore Council approved $479,000 more for remodeling of the existing council chambers, and that's only 5,500 sq. ft. Figure out that per ft. cost." End of quote.

After all the poor mouthing the council has been doing about not being able to afford another policeman or fireman, and has tried to shove a 25 cent override tax down our throats, twice, I think it's about time we get a whole new City Council.

Soccer gripe

Editor, The Times:

I am a player in the Pleasanton Boys Soccer League ... each year we have had a tournament following the season. I am on the under 14 Nobles ... members of the Nobles are annoyed at the fact of the delaying and the possible cancellation of this year's after season tournament.

This years first game in the tournament has been delayed two weeks and now there is talk of cancelling the whole tournament. The cancellation of the January 14, soccer game was correct as it rained that day and it had rained for many days before that. But, the cancellation of the Jan 21 soccer gamp and the closing of fields for practice is needless, useless, and ridiculous!

It is safe to say that not one league director has actually been down to look at the field. Whereas myself and several other teamates have been down to several fields and found them in good playing conditiona. Another excuse I have learned from a coch in the league is that the fields are being prepared for baseball. But the fields that are used for soccer which are Pleasanton School, field, Aqutic Center, Fairlands, Sports Park, Mcay field and Donlon are not used for baseball. So we feel that the kids in the Pleasanton boys Soccer League deserve to play a Tournament.

School boosters

Editor, The Times:

The intent of this letter to the Editor is to bring to light some events that have taken place at California High School. We are a relatively new school and as such our programs are going through growing pains. As many parents and students of our surrounding community are well aware, we did not have adequate facilities to field a football program. There is only one bank of bleachers, one field to practice on, and in September we had no concession stand or scoreboard.

To make a long story short, with the help of our Boosters Club, the Districts Maintenance Crew, Mr. John Williamson and Estate Realtors we were able to do the following:

We designed and built a press box, the maintenance department brought in electricity. We now have a concession stand, which is run by our Boosters Club, and a new scoreboard.

The scoreboard was possible through a $1700 donation by Estate Realtors with matching funds from the district. The district through help from Mrs. Jacks was able to secure more bleachers from the Federal Government.

There are still many projects to be done, but much of this could never have been accomplished without the support and enthusiasm from local businessmen, the community, the Boosters Club and the School District.

The combined efforts of the above has made California High School a better place for students. We are thankful for your support and continued interest.

Ron McNicoll's view

I was reliably informed the other day that President Carter's proposed budget of $500 billion could be visualized by imagining all that money in one dollar bills.

There would be enough one dollar bills to reach around the earth 1,800 times.

Or enough to give a $115,000 Rolls-Royce automobile to every person in Minnesota.

That kind of thinking has given me an idea.

Let's collect our tax money as we always do.

But let's not spent it.

No, let all of those federal projects dry up. For just one year. Because I have a better idea on how to use the money.

Actually, I have several ideas about how to use the money. Take your choice.

One of my plans is to convert it all into dollar bills and place them around the earth 1,800 times. This would be the most stupendous environmental art project in the history of the human race. It would even outdo Christo's running fence in Marin County! Or, let's take the money and buyevery person in Minnesota a Rolls-Royce. I still have a lot of friends there in my native state and it couldn't happen to nicer people. Just think, over the next 50 years, we could hit most of the other states with Rolls-Royces for everyone, too. It's more to look forward to than we are getting now, isn't it?

Governor?

You probably never heard of Theresa Dietrich. You probably never will. But her name will be on the statewide ballot this year.

You see, she is running for governor of California. She was officially nominated by the American Independent Party at its convention in San Diego this month.

The story of her nomination was faithfully reported by the Associated Press and received as much as five short paragraphs in some newspapers. Others didn't bother, apparently seeing nothing newsworthy in it. Such is the fate of minority party candidates.

So her name is not likely to become a household word. But, then, neither did the name of Norman Thomas. Yet, he ran for President of the United States more times than Harold Stassen, the former Minnesota governor who became a constant candidate for the Republican nomination for President.

Thomas was a Presbyterian minister until he turned political reformer and ran for governor of New York in 1924 as a Socialist and then raised his sights to the Presidency to become the perennial Socialist candidate for that office.

While few can tell you what he advocated in those elections, the record will show that many of his planks were subsequently adopted in one form another variously by the Republicans and Democrats.

Dietrich is a mature woman whose home is in Contra Costa County. She holds a responsible position as secretary of the printers' union. No novice to politics, she has three times been a candidate for the State Assembly. As an AIP candidate she didn't get too much attention in those races either.

That, of course, is Dietrich's tragedy. She doesn't have a strong base from which to sound off. Like Thomas she is destined to be a voice in the wilderness.

But it is also the tragedy of modern society which relies so heavily upon the media for its information about the campaigns, the candidates, and the issues.

For this nation was born of disssenting views. It is dedicated to freedom of expression. Implicit in the form of government created by the founding fathers is not only the right for all to be heard but a place for compromise of viewpoints to meet the divergent needs of the people.

It often takes great courage to stand up and oppose the majority. But what if no one did? Thoughtful opposition is the strength of America for its points up the weaknesses of established policies.

Even the highest courts of the land learn from studied dissent and many a time they have veered around to the viewpoint of the dissenter. As in Thomas' case, the views of the minorities often lead the way. It isn't that they are wrong, just that they were a step or two ahead of the majority in their thinking.

True, there was nothing profound in Dietrich's statement as carried by AP. But the short quote reported suggests she might be more in tune with the majority of voters than those who represent them now in office.

"I'd like to see," she said, "property tax relief instead of a tax shift. I think the public is getting wise to the shuffling around of various taxes."

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I was a junkie for three years and finally kicked the habit after a long period of rehabilitation. I came back to the world of the living only to discover that my mother is dying of cancer. What kills me is that the doctors are giving her morphine and I'm terrified she'll become addicted. Nobody will take the time to talk to me so I have to live with my fears. I know what happened to me. What can I do? A.Y.

DEAR A.Y.: Since your mother's illness is terminal, I think you should be thankful that she's getting the morphine she needs to subdue her pain. There's a great difference in drug use for the relief and control of pain for those who are dying and drug use for someone on the street, looking for kicks, or perhaps trying to control a psychic pain that could be dealt with in order ways.

Unfortunately, too often this country drying people are denied the drugs they desperately need to relieve pain. As Dr. Robert Butler, director of the National Institute of Aging, has pointed out, our system of giving drugs to terinal patients "as needed" should be examined.

It's far preferable to give the dose before it's needed so the dying patient can remain pain-free, instead of waiting until the patient feels the pain.

Studies in England indicate that the regular administration of drugs to dying patients showed two major results: less pain and lower drug doses. This means the patients experience less confusion and have more quality time to talk with friends and family.

I realize this is an extremely difficult time for you, but it's essential that you separatey-our drug abuse and your mother's need for drugs at this pont.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm 68 and I own my own business. I've been successful and I want to retire and enjoy some leisure time. I think I've earned it so why' can't I sit back and relax? My wife has a fit every time I suggest this because she's what I call a work-addict and she never takes time off or relaxes. She thinks I'm crazy to even consider giving up my business and she warns me that she won't sit around with me and hold my hand. I don't know what to do. Maybe I married the wrong woman, but I don't want to change wives at this stage. M. P.

DEAR M.P.: Have you considered following your own instincts, retiring and let your wife follow what seems right for her? If you're anxious to retire, you probably have the ability to use leisure time in productive and pleasurable ways. For those who don't know how to do this, any leisure can be threatening.

Not everyone knows how to enjoy free time. A recent study indicated that those poeple least satisfied were those who had the most free time in which to make choices and exercise options. I suggest that you give yourself a trial by sampling one or two months off before you sell your business. You may find you don't want to do anything final. You might prefer to work out some kind of compromise, working fewer hours of the day and training someone else to take your place when you want a week or two off.

There's nothing wrong with considering the possiblity of a vacation without your wife. You might enjoy a trip with a group of sportsmen that your wife might not enjoy at all. A little time away from each other might even add new life to your marriage.

Apparently, your wife equates retiring from a job with retiring from life. The two are quite different.

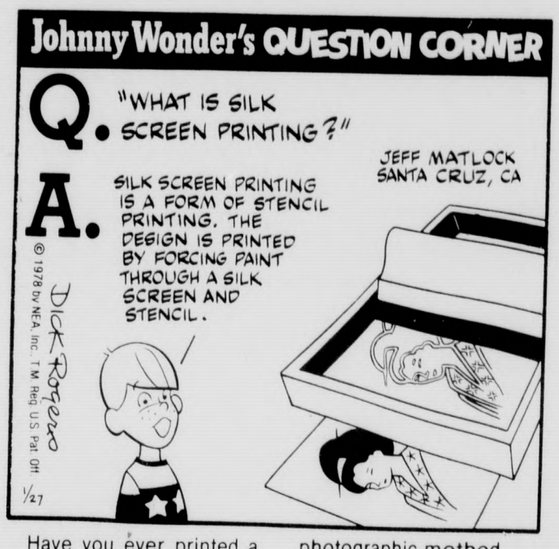
Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "WHAT IS SILK SCREEN PRINTING?"
JEFF MATLOCK SANTA CRUZ, CA
A. SILK SCREEN PRINTING IS A FORM OF STENCIL PRINTING. THE DESIGN IS PRINTED BY FORCING PAINT THROUGH A SILK SCREEN AND STENCIL.
© 1978 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.
DICK ROGERS

Have you ever printed a design with a stencil? Silk screen printing is a form of stencil printing.

In silk screen printing, colored inks or paints are transferred through a tightly stretched silk screen onto paper or other printing material.

The equipment for silk screen printing usually consists of a piece of silk (or nylon) stretched across a wooden frame.

The stencil pattern can be applied to the silk in many ways. Some are painted directly on the silk with shellac or glue. Some stencils may be cut from special stencil sheets or made by a photographic method.

A rubber squeegee is used to force the ink or paint through the open or cut-out parts in the stencil and through the silk screen onto the printing surface.

One, or more colors can be used in silk screen printing.

Each color requires a new stencil, and each is applied only after the preceeding color has dried.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about using Lite salt. That is what I use. I'm also taking Ser-ap-es for high blood pressure. I asked my doctor if that medication would cause me to lose the potassium in my body. He said it would not.

Now my problem is gas, if I eat fresh fruit or drink juice I suffer with it.

I have been walking about two miles a day and feel fine but I usually have to hurry home to the bathroom. I have never had any problem with constipation. I feel like I need the fruit or juices, but don't know how to go about using them without this problem.

I'm about 15 pounds overweight, female, age 62 and trying to lose weight. I have lost some.

I use margarine, skim milk, very little bread and limit my sugar intake to canned fruits and eat plenty of fresh vegetables, but I feel like I'm doing something wrong. The fresh fruit has been a problem always. Please answer as I am very concerned about the potassium loss.

DEAR READER — Lite salt is not a salt substitute. It cannot be used by people who need to be on severe salt restriction. It contains about as much potassium as it contains sodium, whereas ordinary table salt is a sodium salt.

People like you with some elevation of the blood pressure usually do better restricting their sodium. The Lite salt, potassium sodium mixture, helps to promote a better balance between the two. There seems to be some protective effects from potassium against the adverse action of sodium. In any case, it helps to decrease the sodium intake.

The Ser-ap-es you take is a combination medicine containing, among other things, hydrochlorothiazide, which helps the kidney eliminate sodium. Unfortunately, it does promote the elimination of potassium. Your doctor probably thinks in the amounts you are taking that it will not cause a problem for you. Nevertheless, I agree that you and anyone else taking any medicines that promote flushing out salt and water need to be sure he or she is getting enough potassium in the diet.

There is some potassium in milk and, of course, some in the Lite salt. You are wise to use fruits in your diet. They are the main source of potassium.

Your chances for rewarding joint ventures look promising for the coming year. The manner in which you become involved could come about through extraordinary circumstances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb.19) Any misunderstanding that arises today where a friend is involved and money is the issue should be straightened out promptly. Unresolved, it builds a barrier

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today's important decisions should not be made upon initial input. Facts you may learn of later could substantially alter original conclusions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Little things assume greater importance than usual today, especially where your career is concerned. A small happening could stir up unusual benefits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Information may come today through an indirect route regarding something you've been unable to fathom. With facts in hand you'll know how to cope.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Serving as a backup for your mate today, you may be able to accomplish something advantageous for your family that he or she was unable to swing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The right words can inspire lethargic assistants today. Shower them with positive praise. Watch their productivity zoom.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) In financial dealings that are a shade unique, yet practical, you should fare rather well today. Where risk is the predominant factor, the odds outweigh you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Self-doubts relating to your leadership abilities will be quickly dismissed today once you're in the action. The secret lies in the doing.

LIBRA (Sept.23-Oct. 23) Procedures for an arrangement that could be personally profitable are best left to the thinking of others today. You may see only the negative aspects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.22) Unless you're prudent today, funds budgeted for other purposes may be dipped into for something quite frivolous.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.23-Dec.21) Small, but meaningful, returns are well within your grasp today provided you keep your mind on business. Flights of fancy lessen possibilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec.22-Jan. 19) Being in a somewhat gregarious mood today, you may be tempted to talk of things to pals that are best kept secret. Select topics wisely.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

A lot of players would merely open one diamond with the South hand. Anyone who did that would probably have been very sorry later. His partner would pass, East would reopen with a takeout double and East and West would get into the bidding with spades. Five spades makes easily since one of West's hearts can be discarded on the ace of clubs and the other heart loser disappears when the finesse works.

The-two diamond opening and negative two-notrump response discouraged East so there was no competition and South wound up at five diamonds.

He won the first trick with his ace of spades, drew trumps and went after clubs.

We went after them the winning way by leading a low club. A couple of kibitzers gasped when he made that play but it was definitely the right percentage. It didn't matter what he did if clubs broke 2-2. If they broke 3-1 with a singleton 10 the low play would lead to three losers. With a singleton ace or king the lead of the queen or jack would lead to three losers.

Thus the low play would work against two singletons - the high play against only one.

church news

A church where you can be yourself

Jack Schieman is a cigar smoking, motorcycle riding, bearded man, not exactly portraying the traditional image of a man of God. But a man of God is exactly what Jack Schieman is. He was ordained and installed as the new pastor of Pleasanton's Trinity Lutheran Church at Hopyard and Golden Roads on Thursday, Jan. 12.

"My approach," says Jack, as he takes a puff of his cigar, which he took up as part of trying to get off cigarettes, "is to open the ministry up to the laity and have them involved in a significant, meaningful ministry."

One of the ways Jack does this, as he has been at the church for a year and a half, first as an intern to the minister, and then for the past year as Vicar, is to establish and train members of the congregation as part of a Pastoral Care Team ministry.

He explains that he trains lay people in groups of ten, in such skills as effective listening, dealing with feelings, grief processes and crisis intervention kinds of therapy, as well as "Tele-Care," a telephone therapy, in which lay persons help others by lending emotional support in crises.

An important part of his ministry, says Jack, is with adolescents, whom he sees as having unique concerns, and also there is a prison ministry working through church members of the Pastoral Care Team.

Jack sees adolescent problems as a future concern the church will be giving attention to. "We want to try to get the parents and the adolescents together in understanding, rather than to treat it as a problem of the parent, or a problem of the child. It should be a shared problem." In February, he plans to hold a group session concerning problems with kids, mainly adolescents. This would be a support group within the congregation

In the PCT concept, says Jack, people in the congregation are trained for specific skills in helping people with problems, and in teams of two they are assigned by the minister to meet with, and respond to, specific persons with, problems the minister thinks the lay person is especially equipped to deal with.

Professionalism and confidentiality are part of the training for lay person. Jack believes that often those with problems will respond to help from lay persons more readily, sitting down at the kitchen table with a cup of coffee, than if they went to the minister and sort of panicked, thinking, "Boy, I've really got a problem."

But for serious problems, says Jack, the lay people are trained to know when something is too difficult to handle.

It isn't all problems in the Pastoral Care Team ministry, thouoh. PCT's are assigned to new members, as well, as a kind of welcoming committee into the church.

"My belief is that it's possible," says the young bachelor minister, to supply empathy skills. I try to select people who are open to this kind of training and who can do this well," he adds.

Jack would like to see the Trinity Lutheran congregation of 200 persons develop as a family and continue to know and care for each other. He sees this group of people as a very caring, sharing congregation, and they have been broken up into "family" units of 10 or 12 members, who meet together regularly in homes and give one another moral support.

"I'd rather see the congregation growing and caring than to see it develop as to size. The number of bodies inside the building is not my emphasis," says Jack.

He goes on to explain that a big part of his ministry is with children. "I always have a children's sermon. I invite them up to the chancel and we have a little rap before the adult sermon."

Catholic enrollment increases, local poll results uncertain

OAKLAND — The week of Jan. 29 through Feb. 4 has been designated "Catholic Schools Week." The theme for the week will be "Catholic Schools: Everyone Grows." And enrollment in Bay Area Catholic Schools is growing.

According to Sister Sebastian, coordinator of planning and research for the Department of Education for the Oakland Catholic Diocese, enrollment has gradually increased in the 37 elementary schools in tha Oakland Diocese from 14,903 three years ago, to the present 15,233, while enrollment in the Oakland Public schools has declined during the same period from 28,700 to the present 27,400.

When asked to what she attributed this increase, Sister Sebastian replied that "Parents nowadays look for an education with some kind of values."

She went on to explain "It's a trend nation wide that parents are looking for some kind of values education. Public schools have not met this need. It's true that time is set aside in our schools for values education." And she added that parents are looking for a number of things in their children's education. "Besides education in spiritual and moral values," said the Diocesan official, "they want academic achievement, 'back to basics,' and discipline." And she noted that discipline was last on that list of what parents want most for their children.

Sister Sebastian revealed that the Diocese was concerned at the low response to the poll of Pleasanton parishioners concerning the need for a parochial school in the St. Augustine Parish. Less than 25 percent of the one in five parish households oueried, responded.

There is no indication yet of how opinion ran in that survey, and responses are still trickling in. Sister Sebastian termed it a "unique situation" in which parishioners were asked their opinions on such a matter. She indicated that there probably will be a second mailing to those who did not respond.

Dublin phone book deadline

DUBLIN — The Dublin Chamber of Commerce has declared Jan. 31 the cutoff date for placing commercial advertisements in the local telephone directory scheduled for distribution March 1 in Dublin, South San Ramon and Pleasanton.

The purpose of the directory is to consolidate residential and commercial listings for those three areas. Commercial ads are also being accepted by Livermore merchants although the book will not be distributed in that city, according to the chamber.

Northern California Publishing Company, Inc. is publishing the chamber sponsored directory.

Ken White, vice-president in charge of sales for Northern California Company, Inc reported 20,000 copies of the complete telephone directory will be distributed between the three cities as far north as Crow Canyon Road in San Ramon.

Merchants interested in placing commercial ads in this publication should telephone the chamber at 828-6200.

The idea for the directory was conceived after the chamber received numerous complaints from Dublin businessmen about the lack of a telephone book that consolidated area information.

Under the present set up, Dublin's merchants have to buy yellow page space in both the Central Contra Costa County and Livermore-Pleasanton phone books in order to reach their best sales markets.

Dublin advertisers claim advertising costs have nearly tripled. They contend it costs them twice as much for a quarter page in the CCC book as it does in the Livermore-Pleasanton directory.

In the new directory, Dublin, South San Ramon and Pleasanton businesses will automatically be listed in the yellow pages. Dublin chamber members names will appear in bold print.

GGF: a this 'n' that opener

ALBANY — There is always a special expectancy in the air on the opening day of any racing meeting.

Perhaps there is not the electricity there is the day of a major race, but for everyone, fans, jockeys, trainers, owners, the start of a new meeting can always signal the start of a special season where winners will flow like never before.

Nearly 10,000 fans — 9,868 — turned out for the opening of Golden Gate Fields' longest meeting Thursday. They saw just about everything that a day at the races could possibly encompass. They saw favorites win. They saw surprises.

A lucky few even participated in the second biggest exacta payoff in Golden Gate history, a $7,646 ninth race bonanza triggered by the Ochoa brothers, Richard aboard $111 winner Corporal Trim and Arthur aboard place horse Nasdaq.

The brothers had to sweat out an inquiry called by last year's leading jockey A.L. Diaz, who finished third aboard favored Donangelo, before their triumph was official.

It wasn't an auspicious debut for Diaz. His first ride in the first race aboard Northern Royalty ended at the midpoint of the far turn when the three - year - old fractured both sesimoids in his left front leg and later had to be destroyed.

The best Diaz could do was his third on Donangelo and another third aboard Fast Spot.

Among his failures was a dismal performance by Hoist The Silver in the featured Golden Bear Stakes. The second choice in the field was never a factor as 21-1 shot Frosty Affair snuck along the rail past pace-setting Bascom at the head of the stretch and outraced that favorite to the wire.

The winner was the first stakes winner for former champion sprinter Icecapade, a half-brother to the ill-fated Ruffian.

The race also proved a disappointment for Pittsburg attorney Richard Sanders, who saw his juvenile champion of the fair circut last year, Natural Joe, finish fifth.

It was a happier time for Danville trainer Eldon Hall, who saw his She Tiger capture the third race.

Six three -year - old fillies contest today's inaugural running of the Sorority Stakes. First post is 12:30 p.m.

AV still perfect

So much for the problem of overconfidence.

Coach Ron Blanton's Amador Valley High School varsity wrestlers were heavily favored last night against Dublin after the Dons manhandled tough Livermore in its previous match.

The Dons took little pity on the Gaels, winning easily, 45-12, to raise their league leadership record to 5-0.

In other East Bay Athletic League wrestling, Livermore pounded San Ramon, 35-16, and Monte Vista edged Foothill, 39-26.

In another match, Granada battled California.

In Amador's rout, the Dons captured all but three matches.

Mark Hanna got things rolling for the Dons in the 95-pound weight class, whipping Gary Remer, 12-0.

The 103s saw one of the closer contests of the night when Amadors Chris Heredia edged Paul Cobo, 14-8.

Steve Potts, Amador Valley's heralded masked man, dominated Chanen Grisham, 12-0, in the 112's before Dublin's Joel Kallman nipped Bob Boven, 3-0.

Dublin's only other victories were Shawn Kennedy's 11-4 win over Chuck Grandon in the 175's and Rob Gowell's heavyweight forfeit victory.

"The kids did a super job," Blanton said.

Cohesive Dons gore Mats, 3-0

Balance has been the key to Amador Valley High School's soccer team's success this season and yesterday's important battle with Granada on the Don field was no exception.

Amador Valley took a decisive 3-0 win over the Matadors to move into second place in the East Bay Athletic League standings behind Dublin. The Dons are 7-1-1 and Dublin is 8-0-1. Granada fell to 6-1-2.

But it was a team effort that did it for the Amador Valley. The Dons recorded their ninth shutout of the season (non-league games included) for a school record.

At halftime the teams were locked in a scoreless deadlock and it appeared that the score might end up that way as neither team had really dominated the first period.

However, just a minute into the second half Joe Correia took a cross-pass from the right from Kevin Crow and booted the ball through the nets to start the Dons rolling.

Crow had stolen the ball at midfield and dribbled the ball to the right corner before passing the ball to Correia who banged in the six-yarder.

Thirteen minutes into the half Marty Espinoza put the game well under the Dons' control when he kicked in a five-yarder as he leaped through the air. Greg Oxsen had set up Espinoza's goal with a pass from the corner.

The final Don goal was scored by John Castillo on a free kick from 35 yards out. The Matadors were called for tripping to set up the free kick. Castillo then blasted a beautiful spiral through the nets.

Granada threatened to score a couple of times in the latter minutes of the contest but some tough goal tendinq by AV's Scott Kinney thwarted the Matadors' efforts.

AV had 21 shots on goal, 11 coming in the second half. Granada had just six shots on goal. Each team had three corner kicks.

Amador Valley coach Mike Gieb said his team didn't do any adjusting at halftime to improve its play.

"We weren't attacking the ball enough in the first period," he said. "The second half was a different story."

In today's action Amador Valley hosts San Ramon, Foothill is at Livermore, Dublin travels to Monte Vista and California visits Granada.

Despite the fact Amador Valley will be heavily favored over San Ramon Gieb says his players will still be up for the game.

Watson gets 19 and a bump on the head

Amador Valley High School's strongest defensive player, Jamie Watson, poured in a game high 19 points and spurred the Amador girls basketball team to a 52-44 victory over Dublin High at Dublin last night.

The game was the first loss of the season for the Gaels, as their East Bay Athletic League record dropped to 5-1. Amador remained undefeated at 6-0.

Watson explained her incredible accuracy as just "a matter of relaxation.

"I just try and concentrate on the defense," she said. "I'm not that hot of an offensive player. I just stay calm and think about what I can do best."

She hit eight from the floor, and was three-for-three from the foul line.

The first quarter was a speed race up and down the court, with neither team relenting or dropping anything but baskets.

But the Gaels had trouble early when their aggressive guard, Marge Downing, picked up three fouls and coach Phyllis Nagel took her out of the game early in the second quarter.

"I had to do it. It hurt us because we wanted to try and work her with the fast break, " Nagel said.

After the first quarter, with the physical size of the squads as evenly matched as the score, the game got progresively worse for Dublin.

"The first quarter was okay. In the second quarter, we didn't get our offensive rebounds like we should. We just weren't breaking free," she explained.

The Gaels continued to have trouble under the boards and the Dons continued to set up and score.

Trying to play catch-up was tough for the Gaels, but they kept pace with the Dons in hitting the hoop during the inspired third quarter. Both teams tallied 12 points each in the period.

But the Dons power forward Jayne Kuhns and teammate Marian Hagler continued to pick off rebounds, their own or anybody else's.

The fast break situation that Nagel was looking for finally developed in the fourth quarter, when Downing, displaying her quickness, took advantage of a bad pass and reached in for a steal. She dumped off to Joanne Callender, who unfortunately for Dublin hurried the shot.

Shooting became more of a problem for the Gaels as they tried for field goals but had little to show for their efforts.

As the game neared the end, and the players became exhausted, tempers began to flair and fouls were abundant.

Watson left the game with three minutes showing after she was knocked down and someone stepped on her head.

She said it "hurt a little bit" but added "They all "That's part of the game."

"We knew it was one we had to win," Watson explained.

The Dons, with their six-thleagueconsecutive victory in sight, really became fired up and almost every shot that went off, went in.

"Trying to stop them was stuff. They've got the shooters,that's for sure," Nagel said.

If someone should ask how Amador won, there's an easy answer. They simply scored more baskets.

Nick's pair lift Gaels to victory

MORAGA — The St. Mary's basketball team produced another cliff hanger as the Gaels outpointed the University of Portland, 64-62, Thursday night in a West Coast Athletic Conference contest.

With three seconds left, Nick Pappageirge succeeded with two free throws to break the ninth deadlock of the game.

In its last five games, St. Mary's has gone through two one-point losses while winning two by a couple of points and one by three.

Even the three-pointer was decided in the last minute, an 85-82 win over Pepperdine.

St. Mary's overcame the absence of two vital players die to injureis. Added to the left-ankle sprain of its stellar rebounder ken Jones, was the loss of Andy Pecota with a bad bck. Tom Snyder played despite bursitis of the ankle.

The home teamproduced a brilliant passing game to compensate for the injuries. But them missed the recoveries under the basket they are acustomed to. Pappageorge rose to the occasion with a contribution of 28 points for high-scoring honors.

Warriors seek relief

BUFFALO — The Beatles were right. It is a long and winding road. Especially if you're the Golden State Warriors.

The National Basketball Association's Pacific pivision cellar dwellars are finding themselves as welcomed on the road this season as a vaudeville team with arthritic knees.

The Warriors are a pathetic 4-20 on their opponents home court, visit Buffalo tonight in a locally televised contest.

The KNBR/Channel 2 simulcast begins at 5 p.m. with Bill King calling the play-by-play.

Golden State has dropped three in a row, all on the road, to Philadelphia, the New York Knicks and Detroit.

Wedenesday fiasco against the Pistons saw the Warriors blow a 22-point lead and lose, 99-95.

Buffalo is led by six year veteran guard Randy Smith and forward Billy Knights. Smith, last year's No. 2 scorer in the NBA, is currently 8th in the league with a 24.4 per game average. Knight is 9th with a 23.9 average.

Double the fun for EBAL cagers

After a long weekend of waiting, the East Bay Athletic League varsity basketball season resumes with the first back-to-back weekend schedule in its history.

The teams will conlude the first half of the season tonight, then begin the second round with little room to breathe with four more games Saturday night.

Livermore High's resurgent basketball team will again be the center of attention on bith nights, but for various reasons.

The Cowboys, 5-1, play host to co-leader Monte Vista, also 5-1, in a game which has a lot to say about whether the Mustangs, pardon the cliche, "are for real."

Livermore has proven themselves worthy with a resounding 19-point win over Amador. The 'Stangs have beaten the Dons, too (41-40), but have been winning all of their games with a rabbit foot tucked neatly in pocket.

The remainder of Friday's games pits Amador Valley (4-2) against California (3-3) in a very important contest for both teams, Dublin (2-4) and San Ramon (2-4) fighting for playoff contention and Granada (3-3) visiting Foothill (0-6). The Gaels and Wolves square off in Danville, while the Dons and Grizzlies vie.

Blood tests next step?

MIAMI — Blood testing is the key to a comprehenisve system of identifying horses, a staggering job which has been spotlighted by the Belmont Park ringer case, it was noted yesterday at the Thoroughbred Racing Association's convention.

"Since 1970 we've had approximately 40 wrong horses that have raced," said Cal Rainey, executive secretary of the Jockey Club. "Some have been ringers. Some have honest mistakes. People don't believe that (honest mistakes) can happen. But believe me it can."

James B. Moseley, chairman of a Jockey Club committee named two years ago to study horse identification, agreed with Rainey, noting that several unintentional mixups of horses occur long before the horses get to the track, and added, "You've got to know who the horse is before you can identify him."

The Moseley Committee suggested blood testing of horses to establish positive parentage and to establish their correct identity soon after they are born. Moseley pointed out that there have been cases of hospital mixups of human babies.

The Jockey Club, working with the University of California at Davis, began a blood testing program last year and it underscores what Rainey called "a problem of logistics."

Blood samples have been taken from half of the 8000 stallions standing in the United States and Rainey said the other half will be completed by the end of this year. But that is just the tip of the iceberg — 60,000 horses, some of them imported, race each year in the United States; there are 60,000 active broodmares and about 30,000 foals a year.

In order to get a unified horse identification system, which the Jockey Club is pointing for, tracks will have to cooperate, be willing to spend money and, Rainey said, "hire competent people who do not have two or three jobs to do at the track but can concentrate on identification."

The most common identification used is the United States is lip tatooing and while Rainey and Mosley said they weren't against it they also felt it fell far short of the mark.

Besides the blood tests, Rainey felt a reponsible identification system should include photgraphs of night eyes, photographs of white markings on a horse and a written description of a horse's cowlicks.

Night eyes are horny growths on the inside of a horse's legs and are the equivalent of human finger prints since no two horses have identical night eyes, also known as chestnuts. "It's a natural mark that's very difficult to alter and if it is altered, it can be discovered," said Rainey.

Cowlicks are hair whirls that cannot be brushed away or clipped out. Every horse has at least one on his forehead and sometimes on his neck and jugular.

The photos and written discription are required by the New York Racing Association, operator of Belmont, Aqueduct and Saratoga.

YOUTILITY.

THE 1978 TOYOTA SR-5 LONG BED SPORT TRUCK. NO MATTER WHAT YOU USE A TRUCK FOR, YOU CAN'T BUY A BETTER COMBINATION OF POWER, RELIABILITY, ECONOMY, GOOD LOOKS AND TOYOTA TOUGHNESS.

In this cab, you're king. Hi-back bucket seats, wall-to-wall plush carpeting, AM/FM radio, center console and tinted glass, all standard.

A fully transistorized ignition helps make for sure, dependable starting in any weather.

A rugged 2.2 liter, overhead cam power plant. The biggest standard engine displacement in its class, with loads of torque.

A standard 5-speed overdrive transmission which delivers hefty pulling power and terrific gas mileage. In California EPA tests the SR-5 Sport Truck was rated at 28 highway, 21 city. These EPA ratings are estimates. Your mileage will vary depending on your driving habits and your truck's condition and equipment.

You can carry on with almost anything. A bed over 7' long and a useful payload of 1100 pounds.

The good ride. Independent front suspension geometry enhances the car-like handling, ride, and stability.

Stop good. Look good. Power assisted front disc brakes, wide radial-ply tires and full wheel covers are standard.

Built rugged with the technology derived from over 26 years of building the nearly indestructible, 4-wheel drive Land Cruiser.

Rust-inhibiting primer and a rigid, corrugated-steel floor help make this pick-up bed tough. Toyota tough. Another reason why we say, "If you can find a better built truck than a Toyota...buy it."

The 1978 Toyota SR-5 Long Bed Sport Truck. Just one of 6 Toyota Trucks. You'll probably find your reason for truckin' in a Toyota.

Mileage drops when the car comes home

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Once cars get into buyers' hands and on the road, their fuel economy falls from 7 percent to 16 percent below the federal mile-per-gallon estimates posted on dealer showroom models, federal environmental officials reported Tuesday.

The higher the posted mileage, the bigger the drop, with 1977 subcompacts testing 19 percent — about seven miles per gallon — below the figures recorded on prototype cars and listed on showroom models.

The technical study at the Ann Arbor laboratory of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency was described as "very significant" and "very disturbing" by EPA officials.

"This opens sort of a Pandora's Box," said Eric Stork, deputy assistant EPA administrator, as he disclosed the report at a meeting with representatives of U.S. and foreign automakers.

Stork said it was the EPA's first comprehensive comparison of the agency's fuel economy ratings with the mileage actually recorded by assembly line automobiles.

The EPA has announced it is reviewing its fuel economy testing program in light of protests from motorists who get poorer mileage than does the EPA in its laboratory tests.

Lab director John Dekany blamed the discrepancies on unspecified mechanical differences between the pre-production prototype cars used for the EPA's mileage ratings and the models that roll off assembly lines and are bought by the public.

Stork said that doesn't mean manufacturers are deliberately misleading the EPA by offering specially adjusted cars for testing.

"I don't accuse anybody of doing anything illegal," he said. "The motive of the manufacturer is to do whatever is not illegal and get the best possible results."

CHP's unknown links with services

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California Highway Patrol secretly tapped a city water line and used water for over a decade without paying, a Sacramento official says.

CHP administrative services officer Phil McCarthy confirmed what a city report described as an "unmetered, unauthorized and previously unknown (water) connection" and added that the CHP also had connected into city sewers without paying fees.

City officials calculate the bill at $44,709.

"Yes, the connection clearly was made. We used the water and we intend to pay," McCarthy said Wednesday. "I guess you can say it's embarrassing, but it's not as embarrassing as if something underhanded had been going on."

The secret connections were made in 1964 and 1966 during remodeling at what was then the statewide training academy for the CHP, officials concluded. "I don't want anyone to think we were conniving," said Deputy Commissioner A.S. Cooper, who speculated they were made by a contractor without CHP knowledge. "We never, never would have allowed that."

The connections were discovered late last year after the CHP moved into a new academy and started negotiations with the U.S. Department of Labor to convert the old academy into a Job Corps Training Center.

Water tests were made conducted as part of a routine health certification. "Most of the academy was purportedly on a well system, but when water samples were analyzed, it looked like city water," said city management analyst Greg Hatfield.

City water official Robert Johnson said it was next learned that a nearby California National Guard armory had once been served by a 6-inch water line from the CHP academy.

"Our people got real suspicious when they found that out," Johnson said. "They found that line and dug it up."

That eventally led workers to the end of a 12-inch city fire hydrant service pipe. A plug had been removed, and the line extended to the academy.

Hatfield said when the city approached the CHP about the water bill, state officials noted they had never paid sewer fees either, "and we didn't even have a record of that."

McCarthy said the CHP intends to pay its bills, but there is still one hitch — there is no authorization in the budget for such a bill. The matter will have to go to the California Legislature for special authorization, McCarthy said.

Power plant

American Motors' Concord is being sold with a fuel-efficient two-liter engine. The 121-cubic inch four-cylinder motor previously came only in subcompact Gremlins. AMC says the engine provides 20 percent better gas mileage than its smallest six-cylinder model.

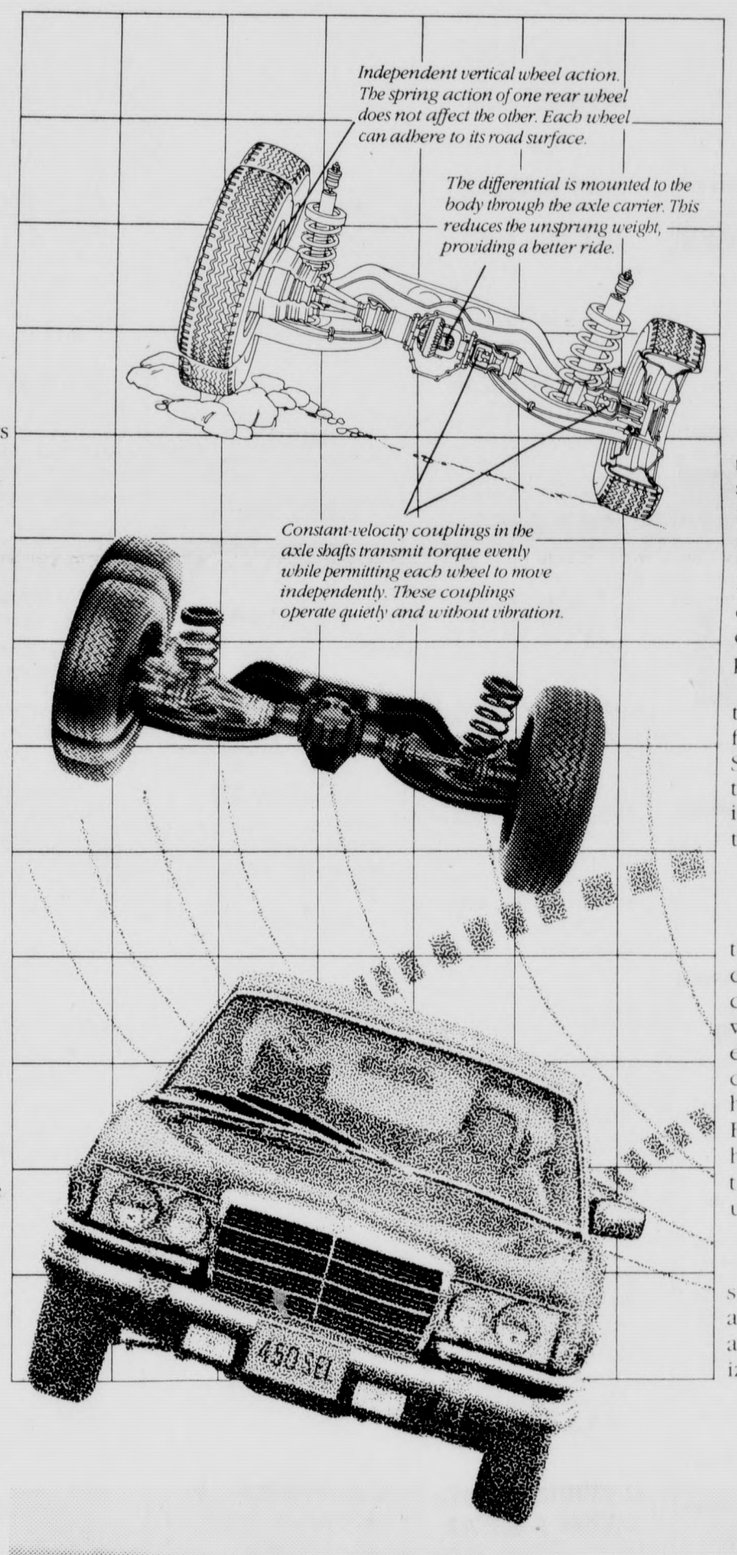
Why a Mercedes-Benz doesn't lose its dignity on sharp curves, in panic stops or on washboard roads.



Independent vertical wheel action. The spring action of one rear wheel does not affect the other. Each wheel can adhere to its road surface.
The differential is mounted to the body through the axle carrier. This reduces the unsprung weight, providing a better ride.
Constant-velocity couplings in the axle shafts transmit torque evenly while permitting each wheel to move independently. These couplings operate quietly and without vibration.
450 SEL

In 1931 Mercedes-Benz engineers launched a new era of driving comfort, performance and safety by introducing 4-wheel independent suspension. For the next 46 years they continued to modify and improve this revolutionary concept in the quest of perfection. Their achievements are reflected in today's new Mercedes-Benz automobiles.

Surer grip of the road

Four-wheel independent suspension put the automobile on the road to greater safety.

For the first time every wheel of a passenger car could adapt to rough road surfaces without losing a sure grip.

And since the wheels acted independently, if one encountered a soft shoulder or pothole, the remaining three wheels could handle the annoyance with greater safety than was ever before possible.

But this was not enough for the engineers. Now they began to revise and refine.

Handle bumps without jostle

In 1954 Mercedes-Benz introduced single-joint swing axles to passenger cars. This gave the driver a surer feel of the road. It also let a Mercedes-Benz step nimbly, up and over brutal bumps and around tight curves with much less transmitted vibration.

In 1961 air suspension with automatic level adjustment was engineered into the 300 SE sedans. It eliminated even more vibration and added an even smoother ride. In 1968 diagonal-pivot swing rear axles with four constant-velocity couplings were designed in to keep that smooth ride constant.

Then in 1972 Mercedes-Benz introduced zero-offset steering on the front suspension of the 450 Series sedans. This helped straight-line tracking under heavy braking conditions and provided more precise steering control in emergencies like blowouts.

Suspension of the future

The continuous refinement at Mercedes-Benz has today resulted in what may be the suspension of the future.

It's the ingeniously engineered hydropneumatic suspension on all four wheels of the Mercedes-Benz 6.9 sedan. It gives the driver a level of control almost unmatched by any other 4-door sedan. It provides exceptional stability, even on curves or dirt roads laced with potholes.

Why does Mercedes-Benz go to all this trouble just to keep four wheels on the road? Simple: The engineers believe their job is not merely to create improvements, but to advance the state of the automotive art.

The most important design element: people

Mercedes-Benz believes their cars should not be demanding on the driver. They continually strive to find better ways to make a Mercedes-Benz even easier to drive. So the driver has more time to keep his mind on the road ahead. Fatigue is reduced by blessing him with an absence of vibration, bouncing, swaying and undue noise.

Safety first

All cars surround you with safety belts. A Mercedes-Benz also surrounds you with an additional belt of safety: a unitized steel protected passenger shell which is designed to help absorb impact energy.

In an unavoidable accident situation a Mercedes-Benz is designed to stay true to form because it can crumple progressively. For example—on impact the forward subframe can absorb shock by gradually closing like a metal accordion.

All in all a Mercedes-Benz surrounds you with over 100 safety features—most of which you'll probably never notice or need. But they're there—just in case.

Engineered like no other car in the world

People give many reasons for choosing a Mercedes-Benz.

But the company's aim in designing and constructing them is doggedly single-minded.

It is to build safe, comfortable, practical cars—with as few imperfections as possible.

This philosophy puts engineering ahead of petty economies and precludes the mass production of inexpensive cars. It allows little room for compromise or for shortcuts; just the pursuit of engineering excellence.

A Mercedes-Benz is engineered like no other car in the world.

The lifestyle is food

SAN RAMON — Virginia Madden is like a lot of idealistic liberals 29 years old.

"I forced myself to do things before. I was attracted to them because I believed in them. Now I'm in the process of growing up."

Maturing for Virginia has meant a more relaxed approach to improving society, a nod to the "small is beautiful" movement, a kindling of fires of possibility on a gentle, individual basis instead of the broader plains and higher political intensity of the peace movement of a few years ago.

During the Vietnam War, Madden's energy was directed to managing Pete Stark's successful first campaign for Congress in 1972. His stands against the war and for ecology prompted her allegiance. She remained as Stark's aide at the Valley office until February, 1975, when she decided to withdraw from the political wars.

"I always want to be challenged and learning things," she said. "I learned the job (with Stark) as well as I thought I could and wanted to move on to something else."

She moved to an interesting new project, founding the Creative Learning Center, an Alamo nursery school, with her San Francisco attorney husband, Palmer, and another couple.

Not only was the curriculum progressive and loving, but Virginia decided that people "are what they eat" and rejected the diet offered by the public school's hot lunch program.

So it was up to Madden to become the school's cook, preparing meals of whole grains, fresh fruit and vegetables, and other additive-free foods in the belief they result in better health and emotions.

Now Madden wants to expand on that idea by extending it to anyone in the Valley who wants to learn about healthy foods and organic gardening.

She, her husband, and 20 other area residents have formed a non-profit foundation called "Community Conservation Center". They plan to buy 20 or more acres somewhere in the San Ramon area and have their educational center open in a year and a half.

The center would have:

— A large organic garden clearly labeled so tours through it can learn why marigolds exercise natural pest controls over the adjacent beans.

— A nature walk through the trees on the property so people can learn names of trees.

— A health food restaurant supplied partially from the organic garden on the property.

— A cultural arts center spotlighting the work of local musicians, painters and poets.

— A place for the instruction in personal growth and health where one can learn about nutrition, including how to grow and cook healthy food.

— A par course and jogging track around the periphery of the property.

Some of the details could change in the next year, depending on the wishes of the founders, but it's easy to see that the total picture is intended to help people take care of themselves physically, mentally and emotionally.

Madden is very clear about what the center WON'T be.

"It won't be a commune of hippies living off the land," she said. There may be a caretaker living in a house on the land, but otherwise it's strictly visits from suburbanites, she said.

And the restaurant won't be a place where people in long, flowing robes and exotic Eastern names eat nothing but bean sprouts, either.

The restaurant will be visually pleasing, seat 100 folks for lunch or dinner, and even have beer and wine, something that may shock health food purists.

"I believe in educating people gradually," said Madden. "I gave up meat for two years and alcohol for one year and I found the psychological changes too much.

"There is such a thing as changing too quickly. You have to go to people where they are and educate them.

"You can't say this diet or that one is best. You have to discover what's best for you."

— by Ron McNicoll

Virginia Madden

Washed boa

BELMONT, Calif. (AP) — When Jean Smith opened her dishwaser she could hardly believe there was a seven-foot-long boa constrictor inside.

The serpent — named Huggy — had been left behind by a former tenant, a dancer named Laura Ramstetter who used the snake in her act.

Miss Ramstetter said that when the snake disappeared she thought it had escaped from the apartment.

Push to sign up voters

MARTINEZ — Contra Costa County, which includes San Ramon, will keep its record for the highest percentage of voters registered and going to the polls if a group of concerned citizens get their way.

A citizens committee organized by James R. Olsson, county clerk-recorder, will help kick off a postcard registration program in the county.

Olsson said all interested persons are invited to attend a planning meeting at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 30 in the jury assembly room of the county courthouse in Martinez.

Olsson noted that the county experienced its largest registration in history between the 1976 primary and general elections when postcard registration was being used for the first time.
